

Money: The Spiritual Is Not Separate from the Practical (LEYM Interest Group)

During the Workshop, some Friends expressed interested in exploring how your current mutual funds were being invested.

- If there are certain types of corporate behavior or products you'd like to NOT invest in, you might be interested in exploring <https://fossilfreefunds.org> (which rates funds on 12 different screens and they aren't all environmental).
- If you want to divest from Israel, the best resource is <https://afsc.org/divest>.
- Learn about the Never Vanguard Campaign being led by Earth Quaker Action Team (EQAT) which is encouraging Vanguard to be a leader in green investing.

If you would like to explore alternative ways to think about money and retirement, you might be interested in exploring The Next Egg, starting with the article 5 Unsafe Assumptions about Retirement and Savings. Neither I (Traci) personally nor RSWR endorses Next Egg, but I do find it helpful to challenge my foundational beliefs about savings.

During the next Right Sharing Conversation we will experiment using the Money Cafe Menu, July 21 at 7:30 pm ET. These interactive discussions are on the third Tuesday of each month. Sign up here to register or receive updates about future Conversations!

RSWR offers several opportunities to attend workshops and events, both virtually and in-person. The four session virtual Money, Self and Community workshop starts September 17. Registration will be open by August 1, and probably much sooner.

We would love to be invited to your meeting to lead an online or virtual workshop. These workshops can be tailored to a 60 minutes adult religious education slot, or a longer meeting retreat. Topics include

- The Power of Enough
- Financial Well-Being and Generosity Amidst Uncertain Times (especially for younger adults)
- The Practice of Neighboring
- Presentation about all of Right Sharing's work
- And others!

Activities and Resources are available for individuals and the meeting, such as our gratitude calendars and curricula.
